CIBN NEWS & UPCOMING EVENTS

OVERVIEW

Information systems (IS) are essential resources to business operations and are ever-present in our daily lives. With the emerging IS technologies, such as Big Data, FinTech, Virtual Banks, there are more concerns from the public on how institutions maintain systems' integrity, such as data privacy, information security, compliance with government, and institutional regulations.

IT audits are a critical part of enterprise risk management. Like other types of audits, they gather qualitative and quantitative evidence, which can be assessed to identify weaknesses in your operations and inform how you resolve those weaknesses. In this workshop, the participants will explore risks associated with information systems, and how to mitigate the risks by proper IS Controls. It is also expected that they will understand how to make the system changes more manageable using formal IS Management practices, such as Change Management Controls and Emergency Changes.

The Workshop is targeted at staff with the following functions:

Internal control, Risk management, Audit, Compliance, Operations, Finance, Governance, IT professionals, security professionals, Digital & Innovative Banking, Channels Management, Treasury Management, Customer Service and anyone tasked with managing and protecting the integrity of the network infrastructure
